SETTLEMENT OF ESTATE

Report of Mrs. Ladew, involving Nearly $2,000,000, Filed Yesterday.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
MINNOLA, L. I., May 15.—The report of Mrs. Louise B. W. Ladew, an executrix of the estate of her husband, Edward R. Ladew, who died at Glen Cove, L. I., August 20, 1905, was filed today in Surrogate Jackson's court. It was the final settlement of an estate of $1,825,750.

The amount of the estate when it was first appraised was $3,061,809, but the cost of administration and the payment of legacies reduced it by more than $1,000,000.

The estate largely consists of mills that manufacture bottles, real estate in New York City, Chattanooga, Tenn., and on Long Island, as well as blocks of railroad stocks.

The Ladews have a beautiful country place at Glen Cove, L. I., and a large string of horses, which are exhibited at the various shows all over the country by Harvey Smith Ladew and his sister, Miss Blise Ladew, who by her clever driving wins many blue ribbons.

MANN IN HOUSE OF HIS FRIENDS

Nottoway Candidates Is Given an Enthusiastic Reception in Bristol.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

BRISTOL, TENN., May 15.—One of Judge William Hodges Mann's first expressions upon arriving here today was that he was satisfied with the date fixed for the State primary, adding that he believed the Democrats would choose him as their next nominee for the governorship.

Bristol being considered a Mann stronghold, the Nottoway candidate's room at Hotel Hamilton was visited by many of his adherents during the day, and he was given cordial assurance that he could count the vote of Bristol favorable to himself.

To-night Judge Mann spoke to an audience of probably 500 people in the Harmeling Theatre, including a number of women. He was introduced by Hon. Herbert G. Peters, who referred to him as a man who would do honor to the high position to which he aspired.

The appearance of Judge Mann was the signal for an ovation, and it was a few minutes before the cheering ceased.

Tells His Platform.

Without any reference whatever to his opponent, Judge Mann spoke for more than an hour, setting forth in no uncertain terms what he proposed for the State in the event he should be the next Governor.

He reviewed his position on the temperance question, telling of the many years he had fought for temperance in Virginia, and declaring that whenever an election came demanding his choice in an issue of "wet" or "dry" he would always vote "dry." He said that he would indorse a State-wide measure if passed by the Legislature in response to a petition of the people, but that otherwise he would veto such a measure.

He reviewed briefly what had been accomplished by the Mann law, and discussed important issues which he

As to material developments, Judge Mann declared that he would advocate such legislation as would develop the State's natural resources and build up a system of industry adequate to the opportunities existing in the Commonwealth. He concluded by saying that he had made no promises to anybody, and that if he should be elected he would never seek another political position; that he desired to leave no greater heritage to his boy than that he had been Governor of the old Commonwealth of Virginia.

AND MANY BLUSHED

Mention of Weddings at Gathering of Schoolmen's Association Several.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

WILKESBARE, PA., May 15.—City Superintendent of Schools James M. Coughlin today asked all the public school teachers who become engaged to be married during the summer months to confine in him. He swore that he would keep their secret, and that no news of the love affair would come from him.

He made the request at the teachers' institute, and explained it by saying that when he knew a young lady teacher was going to be married and would soon leave the school he could take his time to select a good successor.

Most of the young women when they become engaged are so bashful about it that they don't resign until they are almost ready to be married, and this often makes it difficult to get a good teacher quickly.

Several of the young ladies present were seen to blush.

After circulating about for some time to show his friends that he was really alive he departed alone in the car for Watsonville, and a few hours later he was found dying underneath his overturned automobile.

The tragic death of Morse, coupled with the strange rumor which preceded it has caused much excitement.

In the opinion of Dr. Folke the control of tuberculosis is a problem for the local authorities. He said that the most effective work which can be done by organizations is in following the example of the national association and in forming local organizations or committees to take the responsibility of securing county and municipal control of the disease.

News of Manchester

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch.

No. 1102 Hull Street.

Through its attorney, E. Randolph Williams, the Seaboard Air Line Railway, has filed with the City Council an application for permission to extend its tracks from the present terminal out Sixth Street across Hull to Porter Street, where it is said there will be built a large freight depot and office for the city, at a cost of $50,000.

The proposal was referred by the Council to the Street Committee, which will be called within a few days to make a recommendation to the next meeting of the Council.

There is but little doubt that the committee will recommend the measure to the Council, and that it will go through unanimously. Members of the Council, together with the great majority of the business men, are heartily in favor of the plan, because the Seaboard will then be able to deliver goods in the heart of the town, saving them much trouble and expense. The Business Men's Club of Manchester, and practically every manufacturer in the city have indorsed the plan, and will use their influence to induce the Council to grant the permission.

Before making the application the railroad purchased the site for the depot and most of the right of way. It is said that as soon as the City Council acts favorably on the matter work on the tracks and the building will be begun.
